Dear Dan

5 quotations, 10 hours of research and 2 episodes of Holmes on Homes later I found you. I thought after everything that I learned that there was nothing left that a contractor could teach me, thank you for proving me wrong. The cleanouts under each window were brilliant and I am glad that my house is waterproofed for the upcoming decades so I can watch my family grow with no headaches.

The French Drain system you installed was flawless and I am so happy that I didn't use the contractor that told me to connect the drain to my sewer in the garage because you were right, I spoke to my engineer and he said the weeping tile would have frozen in the spring and it was only a matter of time before I would have had water penetration in my house.

Even an old horse can learn new tricks if they are willing to listen! Feel free to use me as a reference any time.
